MASTER

INTERNATIONAL ECONOMICS AND MANAGEMENT
This study program focuses on globalization and increasing internationalization of economies and firms, their strategies to gain competitive advantages and their activities to successfully reach and sustain a leading position. It prepares you for executive positions in international companies and/or research and advisory activities in national and international institutions. The questions you might deal with in our program are for example "How does globalization affect countries and markets? What are the pros and cons of an integrated global economy? What are the resulting implications for international business?"

The program is designed to impart both theoretical and methodological knowledge on international companies, open economies, economic development, and globalization. It is divided into core and elective modules. While the core modules provide fundamental knowledge, the electives offer flexibility to tailor the program to your individual interest. We always take into account the most recent issues, focusing on international economics and management, to ensure our program’s relevance.
WHY STUDY INTERNATIONAL ECONOMICS AND MANAGEMENT IN PADERBORN?

Accredited: The study programs of the Faculty of Business Administration and Economics achieve very high scores in national rankings. Moreover we offer a strong international network of partner universities and a strong regional engagement of companies and institutions.
The content of the two-year study program is composed of the following subjects and elements (see study plan):

- Methods
- Economic electives
- Management electives
- General electives
- Master thesis

The allocation of subjects and ECTS-credits secures a balance of structure and flexibility. The required combination of Methods, Electives and the Master thesis defines the program’s core profile, while still providing the opportunity to tailor the program to individual interest and your intended career. You can specialize in a variety of fields by choosing from the many courses offered by the Faculty of Business Administration and Economics. Your Master Thesis emphasizes your individual profile. You can choose any program related topic covered by one of the departments of the Faculty of Business Administration and Economics.

Due to the program’s international orientation the main language of instruction is English, nonetheless electives that are taught in German can be selected as well if you master the language. Although German proficiency is not an entry requirement for international students, we want you to integrate and feel at home here. Therefore participation in German language courses (up to level A2) is obligatory for international students.
For those students who are interested in further expanding their international experiences we offer the opportunity to participate in one of the following additional programs: the Asian Studies in Business and Economics (ASBE) program or the Double Master Program with Tohoku University, Japan.

ASBE Program
The Asian region is currently gaining both economic and cultural significance thus becoming increasingly important to Europe. The ASBE program covers 40 ECTS (4 courses): 30 credits are earned while you stay at one of our Asian partner universities (semester abroad), the remaining 10 are for a preparatory and reflective course on Asian culture and intercultural management.

Double Master Program Tohoku University
We offer the opportunity to earn a master’s degree in International Economics and Management at Paderborn University as well as the Global Program in Economics and Management (GPEM) at Tohoku University in Japan. These two master degrees can be obtained within regular study time of four semesters. You will spend semesters 1 and 4 at Paderborn University and semesters 2 and 3 at Tohoku University.
